Senior Vice President of Business Development, Community Bank of Louisiana

With over five decades in the banking industry, Sandy Cimino has built a remarkable career and earned recognition as a trailblazer and community advocate. As Senior Vice President of Business Development at Community Bank of Louisiana, she is known for her deep expertise and dedication to financial growth in the region.

An alumna of Airline High School, Bossier Parish Community College, LSU, and numerous banking schools, Sandy has contributed to various local and national banking organizations. Her current commitments reflect her passion for community service, including roles on the Shreveport Ronald McDonald House Board of Directors, Military Affairs Board, Community Foundation Step Forward Leadership Board, and as an instructor for the Caddo Correctional Center Reentry Program.

A lifelong supporter of community initiatives, Sandy has been honored with the Virginia Shehee Most Influential Women in Shreveport Award (2023), Bossier Chamber Business Person of the Year (2013), and the prestigious Athena Award (1993). Her past achievements include serving as the first female Chairman of the Independence Bowl and as State President of the American Institute of Banking.

Outside her professional life, Sandy enjoys traveling, delivering motivational and finance-related speeches, volunteering, and spending time outdoors.
